

DR. H. W. MABIE, LONG ON "OUTLOOK," DIES

Associate Editor of Publication Since 1884 Victim of Asthma.

WAS IN HIS 71ST YEAR

Col. Roosevelt Expresses Keen Regret at Loss of His Old Associate.

Dr. Hamilton Wright Mabie, associate editor of the Outlook, died at his home in Fernwood road, Summit, N. J., yesterday of asthma, an attack of which brought him to his death ten days ago.

Dr. Mabie's health had been failing since a year ago, when, while filling a professional engagement in Philadelphia, he had an attack of acute indigestion. He was in a Philadelphia hospital for three weeks, and then returned home, but his health continued to be poor, but improved enough over the summer to enable him to go to his office about two months ago.

Funeral services will be held at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning in the Calvary Episcopal Church at Summit. Bishop Edward S. Lines of the Diocese of Newark, the Rev. Deane Weyne, rector emeritus of Calvary Church, and the Rev. Walter O. Kinsolving, rector of the church, will conduct them.

Was Born in 1846.
Dr. Mabie, editor, author and literary expert, was born in Cold Spring, N. Y., December 13, 1846. He was graduated from Williams College in 1867, and from Columbia University with the degree of LL. B. in 1869.

For a time he practiced law, and in 1879 he joined the staff of the Outlook. Since then he served continuously on

300 ORGANIZE FOR HOT WATER FIGHT

Tenants of Bronx Tenements Also Demand Steam Heat and Lower Rents.

NO BATHS IN 7 WEEKS

Realty Firm of Gruenstein & Mayer Is Target for Oratorical Attacks.

Because there is literally no hot water in certain rows of tenements in The Bronx the landlords and their agents are going to find themselves, figuratively, in all sorts of hot water tomorrow when they start out to try to collect the rents from their infuriated tenants.

Almost 300 representatives of the 300 or more tenants who are up in arms because they have lots of piles in rent but next to no steam heat or hot water, held a noisy meeting yesterday afternoon in Union street, at Union avenue and East 151st street. For the first time since the outbreak of the struggle against landlord and janitor a protest that partakes of the nature of a labor strike was instituted at the meeting.

Organization of the protesting tenants was undertaken to the extent of obtaining the names and addresses of almost 300 who are willing to go to the streets refusing to pay rent until the landlords and their agents are forced to furnish steam heat, hot water and lower rents are forthcoming. Which, of course, puts it up to the landlords to dispossess those in revolt.

Realty Firm Attacked.

The real estate arm of Gruenstein & Mayer, 230 Grand street, Manhattan, which is said to own almost 500 tenements, mostly in The Bronx, was the target against which most of the men and women who spoke in Yiddish and English at the Union Hall meeting fired their oratorical volleys. The protesting tenants listened patiently enough to the first speaker, Hyman I. Cohn, head of the Tenants' League, who made a long address in Yiddish, in which he urged the rent payers to organize. When, however, the meeting was thrown open to free discussion there was an uproar that could be heard half a block away, as almost every man and woman present tried to outshout the others.

Mrs. Cecelia Davis, who on her own initiative had got together the tenants living at 584, 585 and 592 Concord avenue and at 751 East 151st street into a semblance of organization several days ago, finally outshouted the rest of the tentative orators and then delivered a lengthy speech, in which she told of persistent raises in her rent of $17.50 a month until now, following monthly jumps of 50 cents or a dollar, the landlord expects her to pay $21 beginning tomorrow.

The increase in the cost of coal was the reason offered by the landlord, according to Mrs. Davis and other speakers. They had submitted the two tenants, to two and sometimes three increases in rent since last fall in the hope that the payment of higher rent would mean more steam heat and hot water for themselves and their children. Instead, they protested yesterday, there is only a semblance of heat twice a day and no hot water at all.

No Bath in Seven Weeks.

"I haven't taken a bath in six or seven weeks," shouted Sam Abrams of 631 Concord avenue. "That goes for my neighbors, too. How can I take a bath in cold water? I'd get pneumonia."

Mrs. Esmeralda Walkael, one of the professional spellbinders for the Social Consumers League, took the meeting in hand finally and brought something like order out of chaos. Mrs. Walkael had the men and women present write their names and addresses on slips of paper as a first move in an agreement to be existing conditions. Representatives from each of the scores of tenement houses were appointed.

Engagements Announced.

Mrs. W. Campbell Clark announced yesterday the engagement of her young daughter, Miss Felicity Campbell Clark, to Richard Hache Duane, son of Mrs. James May Duane of this city. Miss Clark has been passing the winter with her mother at 410 Park avenue. She is a sister of Mrs. W. Gill Wylie, Jr., of this city. Mr. Duane was graduated from Princeton in 1910. No date has been set for the wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Mortimer Ward of 122 East Seventy-third street have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss May Eunice Clapp, to Bradish Johnson Carroll, Jr., of this city. Miss Clapp was introduced to society a year ago. She is identified with the colony in Locust Valley, where her parents have a country place. Mr. Carroll is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bradish Johnson Carroll of 507 Madison avenue and he is a grand-nephew of Bradish Johnson of this city and East 151st street.

Miss Clapp was graduated from Miss Spence's School and is a member of the Junior League. Mr. Carroll returned from the Texas border recently with the seventh regiment. He is associated with the Guaranty Trust Company of this city. No date has been set for the wedding.

POULTRY SHOW BIRTH RATE TAKES A JUMP

1,000 More Chicks Expected to Appear There by Wednesday.

In contradiction to the adage "you cannot count your chickens before they're hatched" an estimate made yesterday by the incubator demonstrators at the Poultry Show in Madison Square Garden proclaims positively that nearly a thousand more chicks—Rhode Island Reds—will be born into the Garden before the show ends on Wednesday. This will swell the number of birds on exhibit from 12,000 to 13,000.

As the thousand eggs brought to the show are of all ages a chick, so far, has been hatched every minute. More than thirty of the chicks broke through their shells while en route from Medway, Mass. The warm packing in which the eggs were shipped served as incubators.

The largest crowd so far attended the show yesterday. The judging of the Buff Orpingtons, one of the most popular of the utility breeds, was watched with keen interest. The blue ribbon in the cock classes went to the Sunwick Poultry Farm entry. The same cock won the award this year as last. The ribbon for the best hen went to the exhibit by the Hawesley-Shields Poultry Farm.

The award for the best duck and drake was won by R. E. Pardee of Islip, L. I. The Red Feather Farm carried off the honors for the best cock in the Rhode Island Red breed. R. McL. Quackenbush took first prize in the cockerel division. Prof. W. R. Kirkpatrick gave a talk on poultry brooding in the concert hall, where moving pictures were shown in illustration.

'THE GIRL PHILIPPA' SCORES AT RIALTO

Anita Stewart Makes a Charming Film Heroine for Chambers's War Romance.

IT ABOUNDS IN ACTION

"The Slave Market" at the Strand Proves to Be Thrilling Tale of Spanish Main.

"The Girl Philippa" needs no particular introduction to the public as she is already known to a large portion through the medium of a serial in one of the magazines and a "best seller" as one of Robert W. Chambers's heroines in a modern war setting, but her possibilities as a screen heroine were only revealed yesterday by the delicately beautiful Anita Stewart at the Rialto Theatre, where the picture was shown for the first time. The novel by the popular writer was destined for the screen long before Mr. Chambers dictated the first "best seller," because the story has "action," for which "movie" directors search high and low.

The story begins with a royal assassination, a couple of murders and a kidnapping. It has the inevitable "papers" containing the specifications of a new kind of instrument of war; it has all kinds of spies, a princess in disguise, the European war for a background and ends with the lovers in the conventional "clinch."

Several Ambitious Scenes.

This, however, is a review of the picture, but not of the book. It is certain that no matter how attractive Mr. Chambers made his heroine, she lost absolutely nothing in the interpretation by the easy to look at Miss Stewart, who is also one of the most talented of the motion picture actresses.

S. Rankin Drew was the leading man in the picture and also directed its production for the Vitaphone company. There are many commendable features of the picture, including a realistic sword duel in the prologue and numerous battle scenes on an ambitious scale.

The Vitaphone company changed its usual policy of having the picture shown in the theatre, so that the showing was in the nature of a "first night."

Romance at the Strand.

Another special holiday attraction is Pauline Frederick in "The Slave Market," by Frederick August Kuehnert, at the Strand Theatre. It is a romantic story of the Spanish Main in which Miss Frederick appears as a proud Castilian beauty whose love which culminates in a thrilling scene where Thomas Meighan as a soldier of fortune rescues her from a band of pirates, who have placed her in a cage and who intend to sell her into slavery.

"Piggin Island" with Harold Lockwood and May Allison was the Sunday picture at Loew's New York Theatre.

"The Island of Desire" with George Walsh and Anna Luther, is the attraction at the William Fox Academy of Music.

MAXINE ELLIOTT IN MOVIES.

Actress and War Nurse to Star in Goldwyn Pictures.

Maxine Elliott, who returned recently from Europe, where she has rendered distinguished service in war relief work on a hospital barge in the canals of Flanders, announced yesterday that during her several months leave of absence here she will make her debut in the motion pictures as a star for the new Goldwyn Pictures Company. Preparations for the immediate production of a picture featuring Miss Elliott are under way and the announcement of the details will be made shortly.

On the canals of the Marne Miss Elliott has personally superintended relief work aboard a hospital houseboat fitted out at her own expense soon after the beginning of the war and through contributions received from many distinguished sources. Among those who have made an inspection of her work on this craft were King George, the Duke and Duchess of Sutherland, Prince Alexander of Teck, King Albert of Belgium and commanders of the British, French and Belgian armies.

PADEREWSKI AND KREISLER.

They and Boston Symphony Will Appear Together at a Benefit.

Ignace Paderewski, Fritz Kreisler and the Boston Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Dr. Carl Muck, will appear together in the Metropolitan Opera House on Tuesday evening, January 16, for the benefit of the Vacation Association.

The gathering together of three such musical attractions for one concert is almost unprecedented, and betokens long and skillful work on the part of the officers of the association, of which Miss Anne Morgan is treasurer. Many of the tickets have been sold.

Second N. Y. Artillery Entertains.

SAN ANTONIO, TEX., Dec. 31.—The Second New York Artillery entertained at McAllen to-night for New York to be mustered out of Federal service.

MUSIC REIGNS ON LAST DAY OF 1916

Seven Concerts and Recitals Usher In 1917 With Notable Performances.

There were seven concerts and recitals of notable importance yesterday in New York, the three entertainments of larger scope in the evening having been announced as New Year's eve celebrations.

In the afternoon at Aeolian Hall the Symphony Society offered a programme, with Olga Samoroff as soloist. She was heard in Saint-Saens's piano concerto in G minor, of which she gave a brilliant and elegantly finished delivery. The orchestral numbers were Dvorak's "New World" symphony, and a suite taken from Stravinsky's "L'Oiseau de Feu," which was made familiar here by the Diaghilev Ballet Russe. Superbly played by Mr. Damrosch's orchestra, the music seemed to lose greatly through separation from the delineative action of the ballet as was intended for it by its composer.

In the afternoon also Fritz Kreisler appeared in a recital, his fifth this season, at Carnegie Hall. He was assisted by Carl Friedberg, pianist. Together the two artists gave a performance of Cesar Franck's "Les Dames de la Vieillesse," which was made familiar here by the Diaghilev Ballet Russe. Superbly played by Mr. Damrosch's orchestra, the music seemed to lose greatly through separation from the delineative action of the ballet as was intended for it by its composer.

In the evening a concert was given at the Manhattan Opera House, which was for sale in the theatre. It was given with an orchestra of eighty musicians, Ossip Gabrilowitch, the Russian pianist, appeared in the dual role of conductor and soloist in an all-Tschakowsky programme. Having won many laurels abroad in the capacity of conductor, it is safe to say that Mr. Gabrilowitch added to them last night in his two readings given to the orchestral compositions he led, which were the tone poem "Francesca da Rimini" and the symphony "Pathetique." The distinguished Russian's solo number was the B flat minor piano concerto, a work he is wont to perform with masterly authority. It was played under the baton of Arnold Volpe, also a Russian.

Master Sanders's chamber music concert at the Harris Theatre enlisted the services of Sam Franko and his orchestra, and as vocal soloists, David Bispham, Lois Patterson and Olga Carrara. Mr. Bispham's songs included Schumann's "Two Grenadiers." One of the orchestra's selections was the "American Fantasy" of Victor Herbert.

Yvette Guilbert, in a "request" programme of French songs taken from her repertoire, brought to a close the series of recitals she has been giving at the Maxine Elliott Theatre. She was assisted by Mildred Dilling, harpist. Gustave Ferrari was at the piano.

Beginning at 8:30 o'clock in Carnegie Hall the Russian Symphony Orchestra, under Modest Altshuler's direction, gave a concert with Leopold Godowsky as soloist in Tschakowsky's B flat minor piano concerto for his chief number. Belle Storey, soprano, and Hugh Allan, tenor, were also soloists. The orchestra's final number, the "American Fantasy" of Victor Herbert, was played at midnight.

The Passing Of The Old Year

with its successful and very substantial progress for this store, leaves us with a debt of gratitude to our Friends and Customers, for the interest and support that have made possible an achievement so gratifying. The friendship of many reaches back through time and its multitude of changes. Others, more recently numbered among our patrons, have shown no less appreciation of our efforts to render efficient service. To Friends, old and new, we join with our thanks for their consideration, our hearty good wishes for their success and happiness throughout the New Year and those to follow, and the assurance that we hope further to cement the pleasant relations of the past by our service in the future.

To our Fellow-workers and Employees, whose cooperation and loyal endeavor have helped so much to make the store an agreeable shopping center to our patrons, and the year so prosperous to the whole organization, we offer our felicitations for work well done. In wishing them a New Year of Happiness, we wish to have them know that a wish for their personal progress is closely linked with our desires for the continued progress of this store with which they have cast their business careers.
